

Opening Doors – Published work

At Grange Junior, children experience learning journeys in English which are inspired by the Opening Doors approach. We believe that supporting all young writers to connect with rich, creative literary texts inspires their thinking and their own writing. It opens doors to possibility and helps them to find new voices and grow wings to fly! The Opening Doors publisher, Crown House, publishes pupils' writing on their website to inspire other writers and their teachers. By completing the form below, you are giving permission for your child's work to be included on this site.

With thanks in advance

Parental Consent Form for Use of Child's Work

By signing this form I,.....the parent/guardian of:
(child's full name).....(age),
a pupil at (school name)

hereby give Crown House Publishing Limited permission to use the following work by my child named above or any reproduction or adaptation of it:

Title of work.....

Unit which inspired the writing.....

for publication on the website www.crownhouse.co.uk and in all forms and media in connection with books written by Bob Cox in the 'Opening Doors' series and for other general purposes relating to the work of Crown House Publishing Limited including, without limitation, use in advertisements, marketing, leaflets and other publicity purposes and to authorise others to do the same.

The above consents will apply throughout the world and for an indefinite period.

Signed.....Date.....

Relationship to child

Address.....

Postcode.....